OF THE YEAR IN REVIEW

AS THE CLASS OF 1955
HAS SEEN AND MADE IT.

JUNE 1955

AUGUST

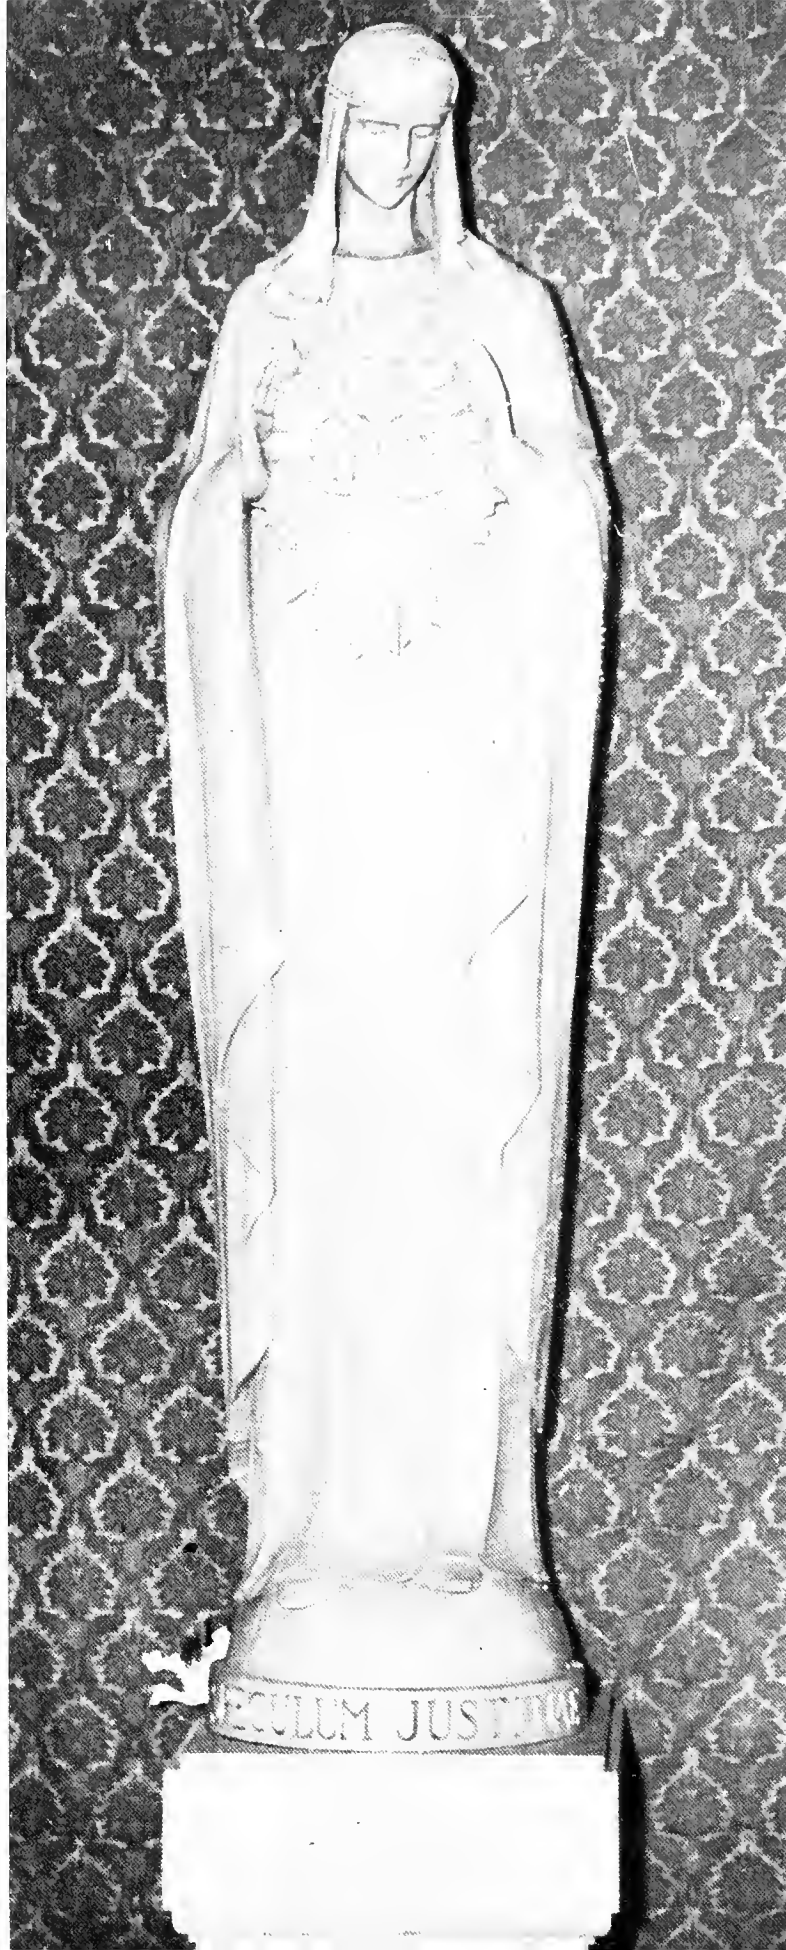

Since last
April when ground was broken,
the site of the new Stuart wing rising behind us has been a constant reminder of what Reverend Mother Barry has done for us in the three years she has been at Newton. Therefore the class of 1955, the first to enjoy the new addition, dedicates this yearbook to Reverend Mother Barry in affectionate gratitude.

"Our Lady of The Trinity:
Patroness of Newton."

Student government news is posted on the Stuart "scarecrow".

In Stuart House, whose completion began in the Marian Year, we find our own Sacred Heart Madonna—

Mater Admirabilis

The Lily Procession closes the Marian Year.

Looking out from Stuart House in the fall, we see the Children of Mary, led by Carol Morgan, the first President, offering a Marian Year living rosary.

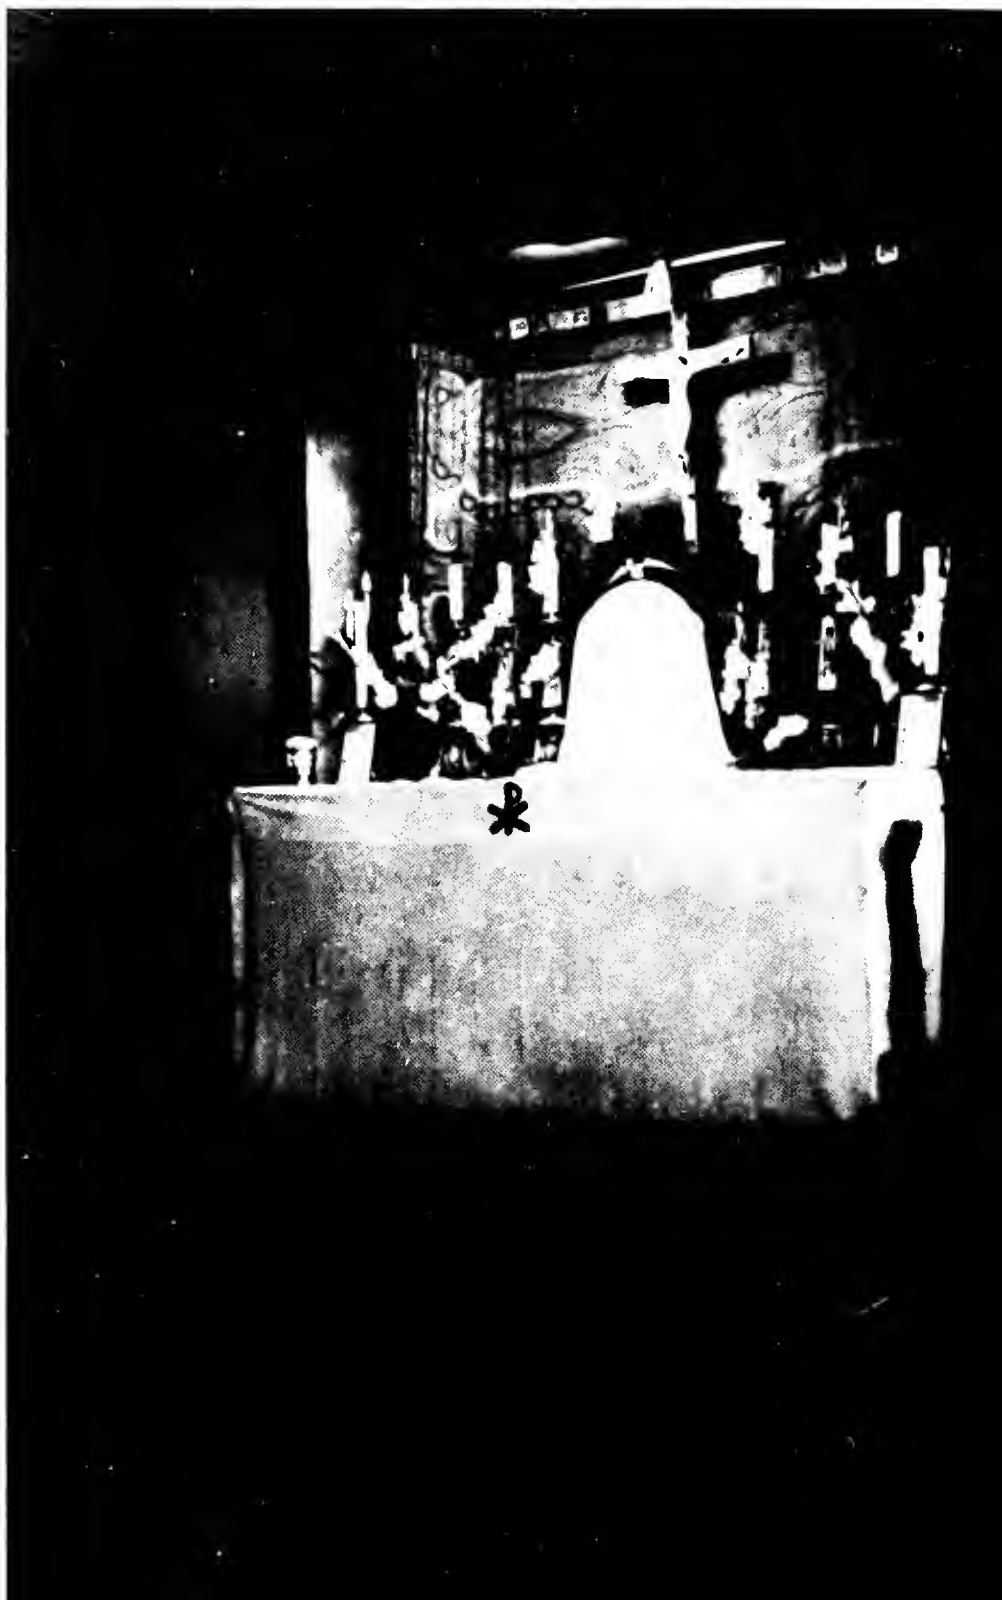

Looking out from Stuart House in the spring, we see the Marian Year Seniors planting their class tree.

Going by the inside way from Stuart to Barat we find the chapel, the center of the house.

FOR THE FUTURE

Left to Right: J. David. C. Morgan. C. Brennan. P. Byrne. A. Marshall, K. Galvin, W. Weber (Chairman).

One of the Social Committee jobs is to outline plans for dances. The details are filled in later at Class Meetings.

All the preparations having been made, and the Playhouse gaily decorated, the orchestra tunes up.

Meanwhile, in Duchesne, preparations of a different order are in progress.

The dance over, we return to our houses after a wonderful evening.

Housewarming brings our families to admire our (for once) perfect rooms, and the Janet Stuart Guild pours tea for us.

EDUCATION

Father Friel resumes teaching at Newton after an absence of five years.

In Barat front hall, which has taken on a new look, Madre Guevara, between her Spanish and French classes, welcomes any who have the right to use the front door.

Mr. Powers and Mr. Carello relax between their Education and Italian classes.

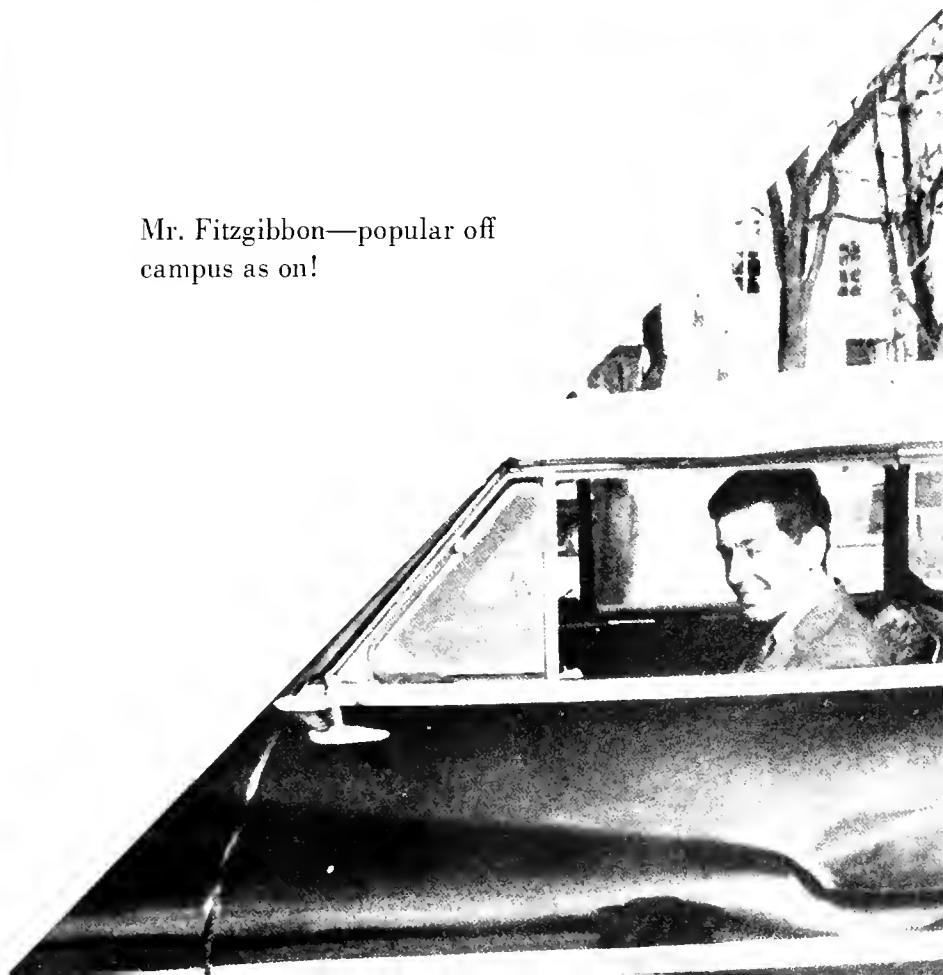

Mr. Regalado reaches for a book in the faculty lounge.

Leaving the postoffice Miss Julian and Miss Kane discuss their mail.

Mr. Fitzgibbon—popular off campus as on!

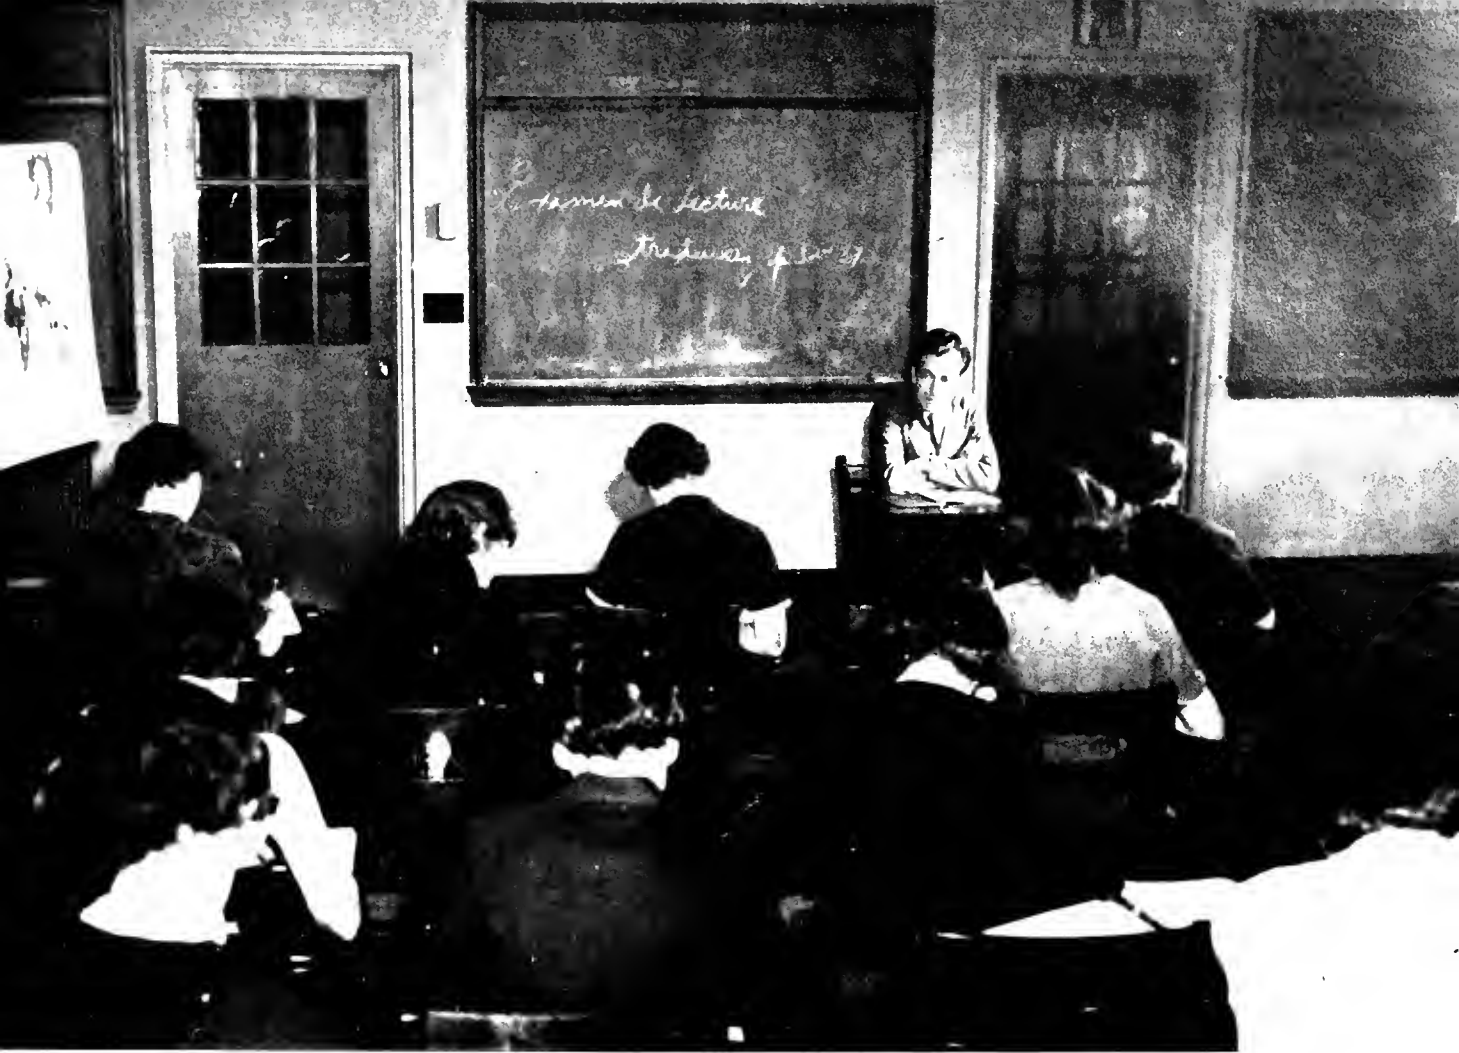

Dr. Nemethy and Mrs. Frawley preside over "ologies" of a different nature.

The art majors discover the external features of man, from Mrs. Aradi . . .

. . . while a science major explores his internal functions.

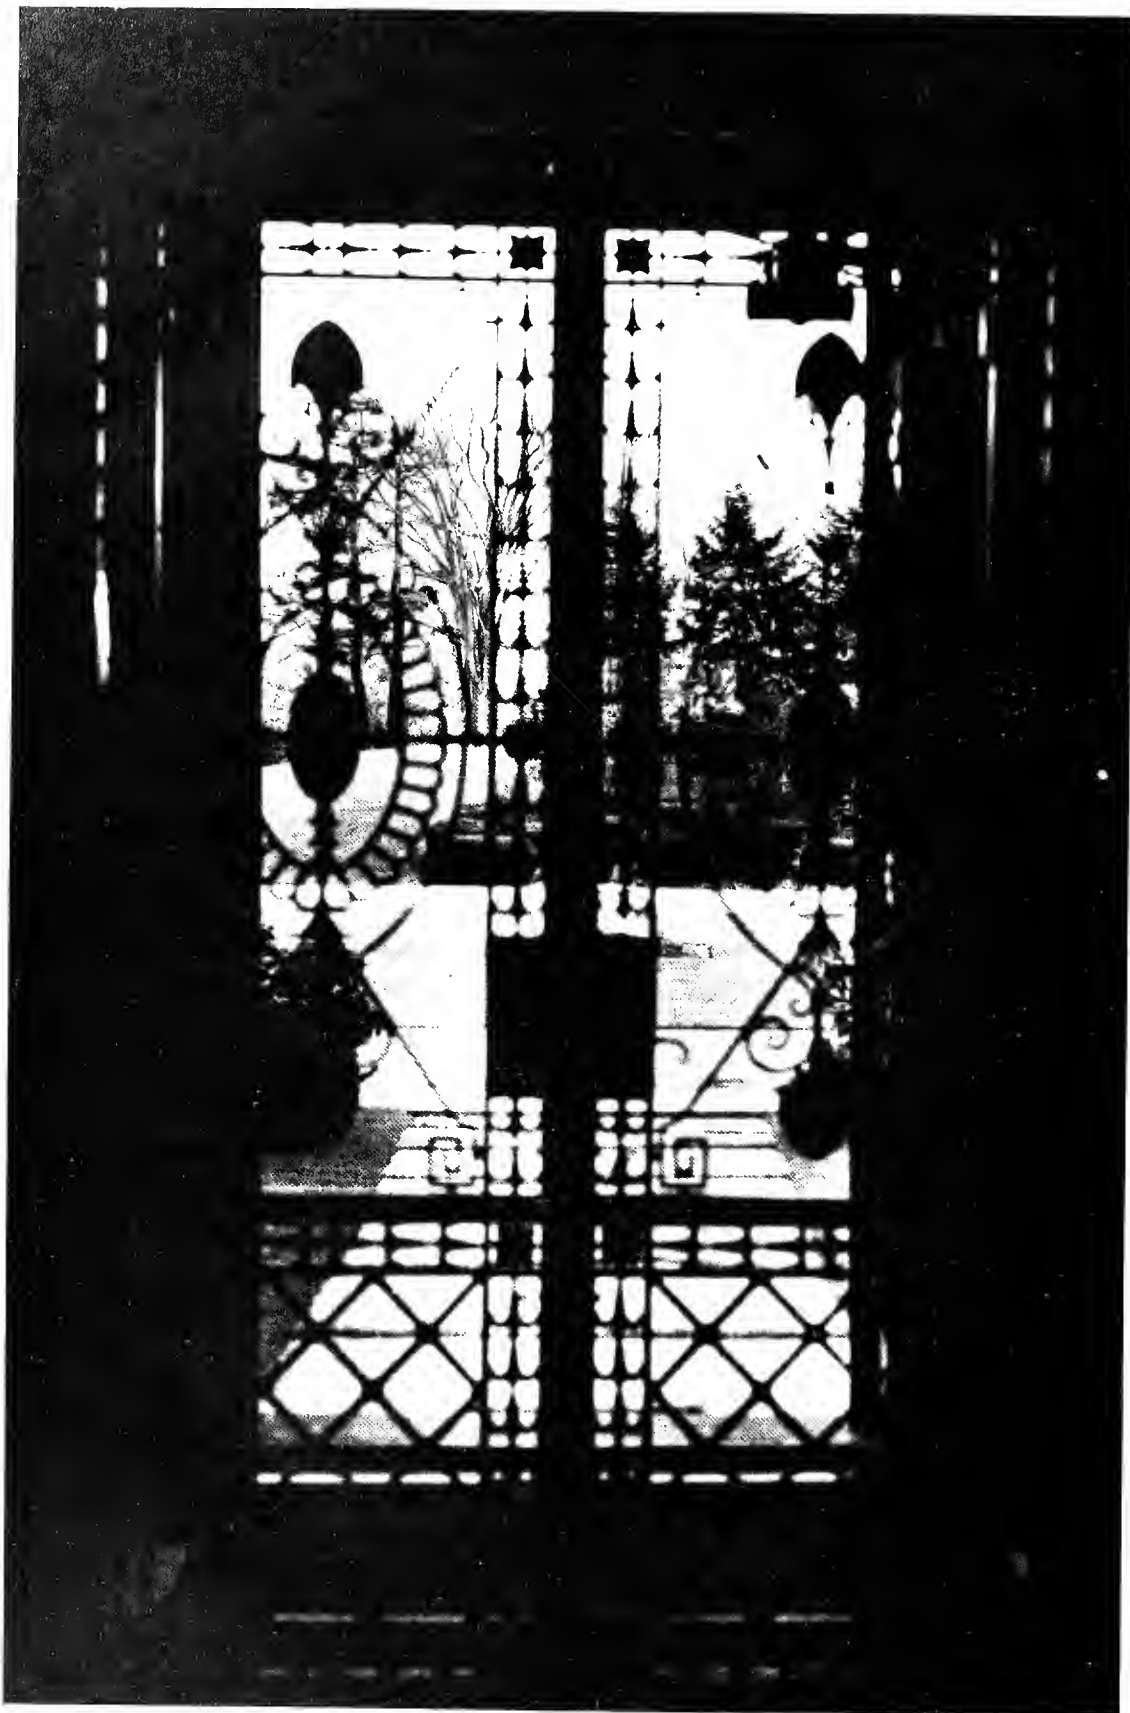

Often when we are not in class or taking an exam, we are doing an experiment in the lab, or studying in our rooms or in the Library.

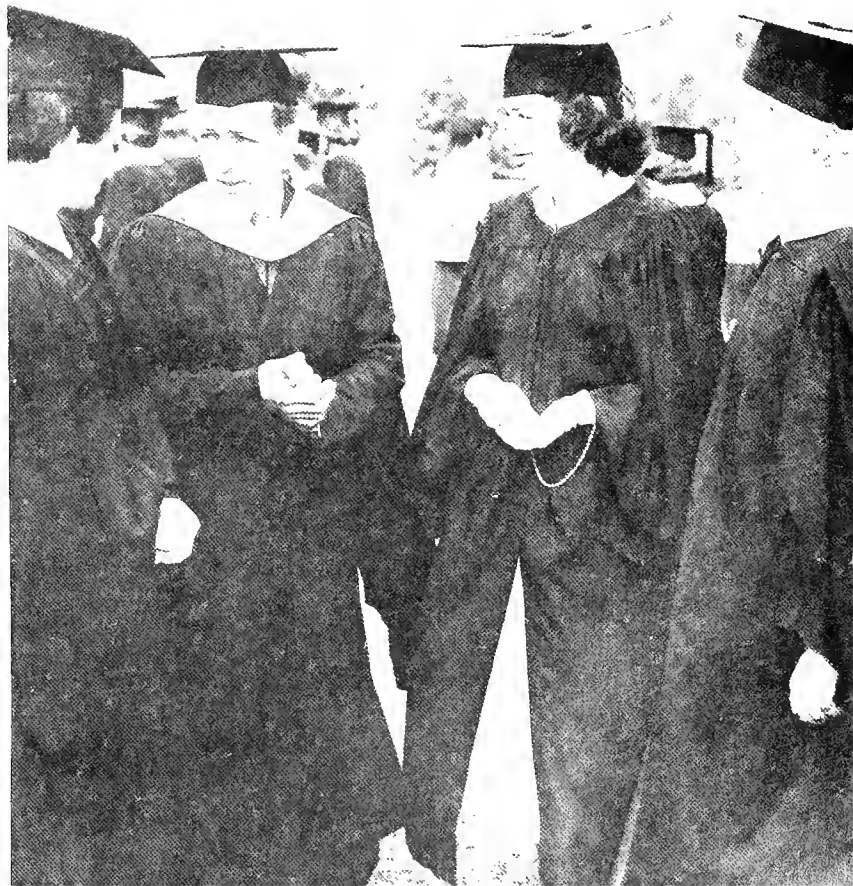

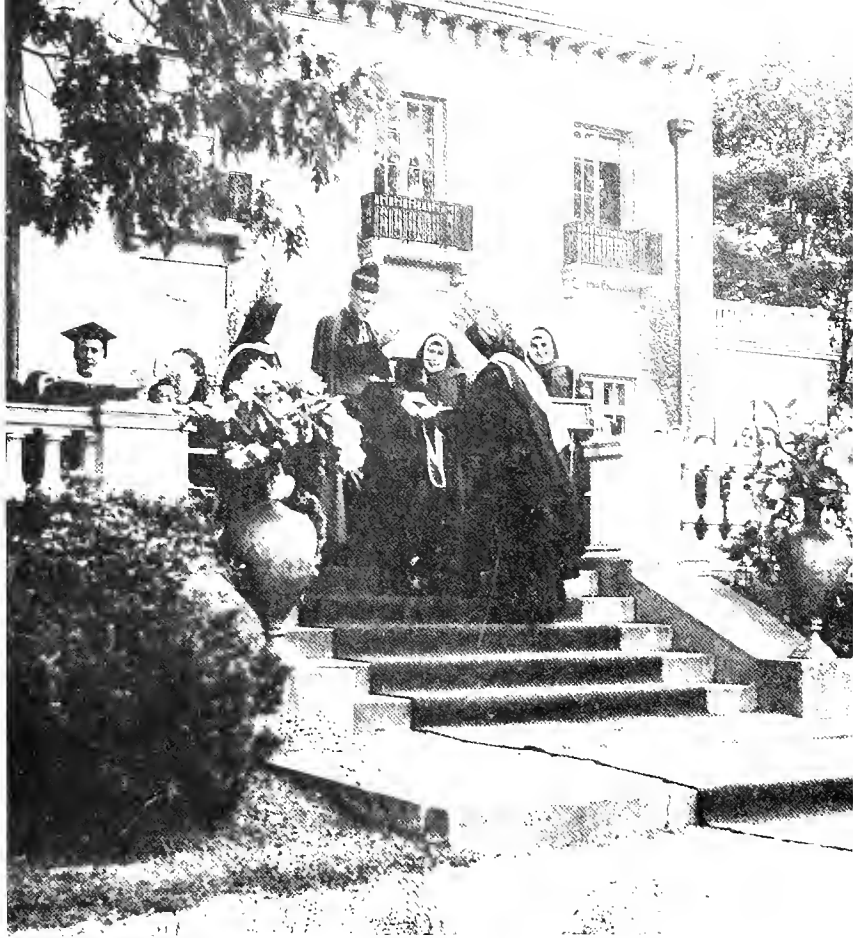

As we enter Barat we are at once reminded that as Children of the Sacred Heart we should keep close to the "standard of our King."

Treasurer Betty Ann Reilly, President Joan Costello, and Vice-President Jane Quigley tune up before a Monday night rehearsal.

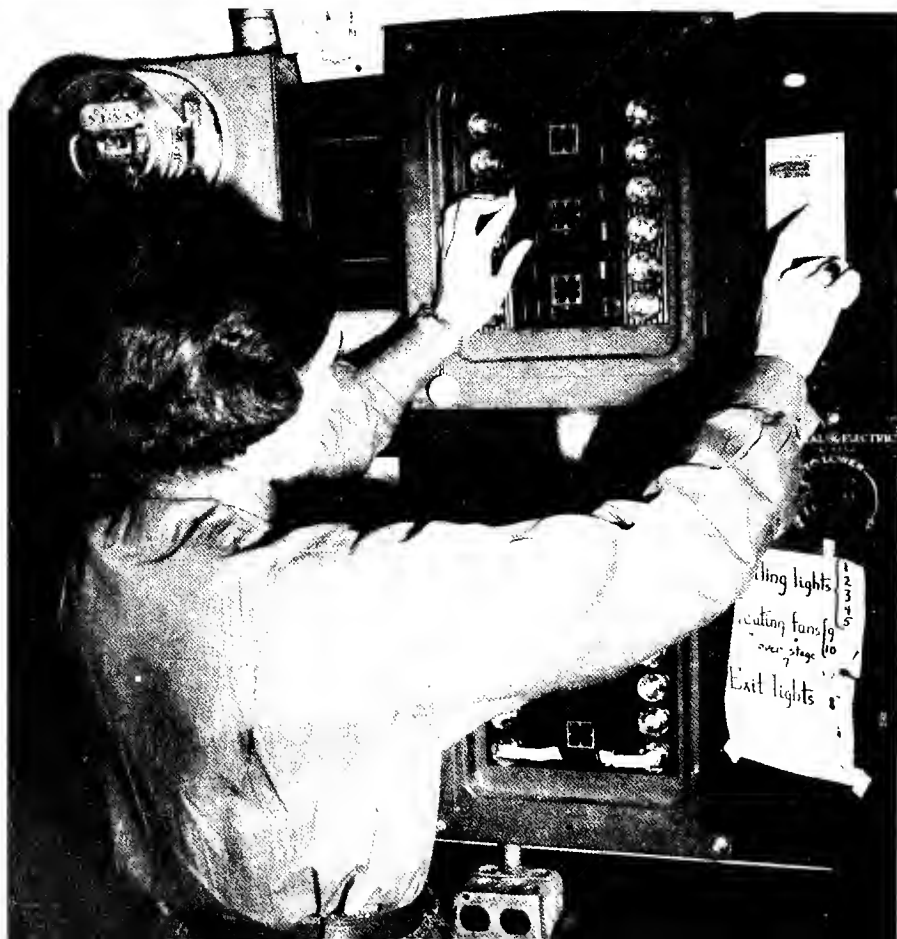

Mary Leigh Madden tries out for a part with gestures in the play to come, while the stage crew makes final preparations before curtain time.

Mary Nolan, president of the Dramatic Club, dims the lights in the playhouse, while the audience waits for the curtain to rise on "Northanger Abbey."

The old editor of "885" confides to the new editor policies which below we see in operation.

Pursuing literary lines, the staff of Wheat and Cockle dig deep into the files to get hints from last year's edition, while Lee McGrady, below, reviews a current best seller for the Literary Circle.

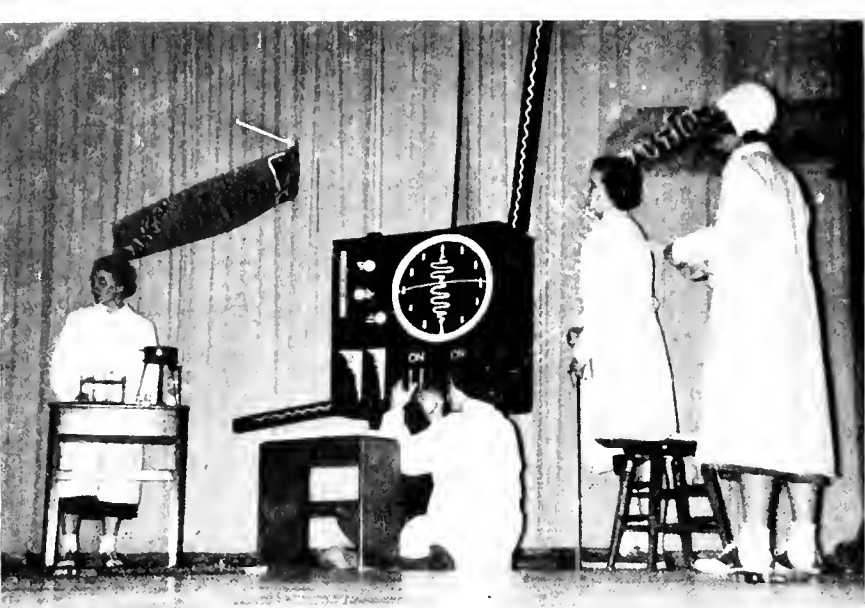

Nursing may be a science in the classroom but it is a very fine art by the bedside—Miss Nemec and Miss Bartko prepare something nourishing for a sleeping patient.

Not only do we actively produce art, but passively enjoy it.

"Attempts to make amateur acting a fine art succeed" say the headlines of the morning issue reviewing last night's performance.

Miss Doyle, in charge of the College Placement Bureau, is only too anxious to solve unemployment problems.

Students look over the opportunities — and the requirements — for jobs and graduate study.

One form of Grant-in-Aid work between classes.

Some spend their money at home, and some abroad.

YEARBOOK STAFF

The yearbook staff extend their grateful appreciation to Mother Maguire whose help always needed was always given.

We are also indebted to Rose-Anne Dognin for understudying the Art Editor while (and after) she had her tonsils removed.

Mary Nolan, who typed the copy.

Mr. Waxler, of the Alfred Brown Studio, our official photographer.

Mr. Norman, of Brandeis University, our emergency photographer, and Jane Quigley, who filled in the extra spaces with last minute snapshots.

We would also like to thank all who stopped off on their way through Barat Common to place a photograph or draw a line for us.
